Maths

This week we are going to be looking at measurement and comparing different objects.

In this picture;

How many different numbers can you see? Write down what you see!

For example:

I can see 5 chairs. I can see 4 flowers. What can you see?

Now I hope that you managed to find some sticks yesterday. Choose your favourite as you will need it for today's lesson.

We are going to learn today all about shortest and longest and what that means. Watch this video to help you understand:

Now it is your turn. Using the stick you found yesterday, I need you to go around your home and find 10 things that are shorter than your stick. What can you find? How can you check it's shorter? Did you find as many as 10? Send me a photo of all the items you found next to your stick!

Drama

Today we have a free pantomime that you can watch at home! You can watch this as many times as you like until January the 11th, when sadly it will no longer be available. The show is called 'Sammy and the Beanstalk'. The link is

Once you have watched the pantomime, could you draw me your favourite part and tell me why you liked it?

I hope that you enjoy it!

Literacy

I hope that you enjoyed the story of 'The Stickman' yesterday. Did you expect to see Santa? What a nice surprise!

Today I need you to draw your favourite part of the story. Which part did you enjoy the most? My favourite is when all the family is together at the end, so I will draw this part. Colour in your picture and write your name on the top. Keep it handy as we will add more to it in tomorrow's lesson.

Music

Today we will be singing and dancing about going on a journey. You will need your singing voices and your imagination. You will also need something to knock on. Have a go at following the rhythm.

Send in videos of you doing this at home!

Art

I hope that you are continuing to enjoy 'The Stickman' by Julia Donaldson. Today we are going to take another one of the sticks you found and create your own Stickman character. You will need:

A stick

A piece of paper

Sellotape

Pen

Leaves (for decoration)

You could find a selection of different size sticks and stick them on a piece of paper so that it looks like a stickman. Use your pen to draw a face. Be as creative and imaginative as you can! Don't forget to send me a photograph of your creations!
